International 'Cooperation'

- ◆ Non-Intervention Patrols (Aug 20, 1936): Britain, France, Germany, Italy
  - Britain and France patrol Nationalist coastline
  - Germany and Italy patrol Republican coastline

- ◆ Nyon Accords (Sep 14, 1937) – Britain and France
  - Need to stop attack by submarines on shipping, expanded to include aircraft as well
  - Attacks by submarines decrease when 27 destroyers take station to prevent
  - Suspended in May 1938, renewed in Feb 1939

Conclusion of the War

- ◆ Increased tensions and fear of general European war
  - England and France did not push too hard for compliance by Germany, Italy, and Nationalist out of fear for going to war
- ◆ Vulnerability of ships to aircraft gets greater attention
- ◆ France realizes need to reinforce defenses in Mediterranean, especially at Oran and Mers-el-Kebir
- ◆ Germany, Soviet Union, and Italy tested new weapons of war in prelude to World War II, especially aircraft and tanks
- ◆ Both Germany and Soviet Union wanted Spanish Civil War to go on and on
- ◆ Estimated that between killed and expatriated, Spain lost over 1 million people – of which over 200,000 died from malnutrition, over 125,000 from execution, and 400,000 fled to other countries

Summary and Impact

- ◆ Britain willing to make concessions to Hitler on land, but not at sea
  - Tradition of England at sea strengthened Chamberlain's resolve
- ◆ Cooperation between France and Britain at sea developed and tested (Entente Cordial at sea)
- ◆ Use of force to get concessions encouraged Hitler and Mussolini
  - Germany goes after Czechoslovakia and Italy after Albania
  - Hitler told Austrian Chancellor to either yield to German demands or Austria would become another Spain
- ◆ Spanish Civil War tested the various political philosophies and ideologies in crucible of bloody war and many of them failed with the flow of blood
- ◆ Resources and technology were seen to be critical factors that spelled success when combined with ruthless application of force
